Not Rich Enough to Be Rude.
Newspaper readers have all been told that "be requisite for being very rich" is "to be very rich." And the view finds support, it is said, inside the charmed circle itself. At an evening party with snuffboxes from the Metropolitan one of the proudest queens left in the middle of the program, says Harper's Magazine. A rival, whose dislike of music was equally genuine, rose to follow her, but was detained by the gentleman by her side, himself a wit and a goodly arbiter of the elegances. "No, my dear lady," he said, "you aren't rich enough to leave early. Mrs. A. has ten times your money—it's all right for her, but you must be polite and stay till the end!"

Evening Chat

The Monongahela River for the past two weeks has been getting grayer and more gray. Now it is a deep emerald color that is of undecipherable beauty. Many persons noting this color often idly wonder why the water is green, they look at it as they pass by on the train or up and down in a boat and they after remark about the richness of the color yet not one out of a hundred of those that see the color know just why it appears so.

Most every one knows that the natural color of water is not. That is to say that it is colorless. Thus a pure stream of water or lake that contains but little foreign matter to color it appears blue in the day, reflecting the color of the sky, while at night it appears black.

Inland rivers and small ponds however, as soon as the mud from the early spring floods has settled, lose their yellow color and take on this green appearance gradually until by late in the fall the color is very intense.

This is due to the countless billions of small cellular vegetable matter that grows in such water when it is not rapidly moving. These cellular growths are known as algae. These algae differ from the average bacterial growth in that they contain chlorophyll, or green vegetable coloring matter, and are also considerably larger than the average disease germ. These algae are in the main harmless and are digested, when one drinks the water, in much the same manner that other green vegetables that are used for food.

No Talking Machine Manufacturer Dares to Make this Test

No talking machine manufacturer dares to invite a public comparison between a great artist's voice and the reproduction of that voice by a talking machine. No talking machine could sustain such a test.

The NEW EDISON

has been tested in this manner before two hundred thousand people. Great artists such as Marie Rappold, Anna Case, Alice Verlet, Christine Miller, Marie Kater, Elizabeth Spencer, Helen Clark, Arthur Middleton, Thomas Chalmers, and numerous others, have matched their voices against Mr. Edison's Re-Creations thereof and two hundred thousand music lovers have confessed their inability to distinguish the real voices from Edison's Re-Creations of them.

Not a Talking Machine

The New Edison is not a talking machine. It does not re-produce music. It literally re-creates music. It is the world's most wonderful musical instrument.

How to Keep Your Child From CONTRACTING INFANTILE PARALYSIS

- (1) Carefully regulate the child's bowels with castor oil.
- (2) Spray the child's nose and throat morning and evening with a mild antiseptic solution such as Dobell's Solution, Listerine or Glycothymoline. (Do not spray forcefully, but gently).
- (3) Have the child brush its teeth thoroughly morning and evening.
- (4) Keep the child on a plain wholesome diet with a minimum of sweets. (Fruits should be washed before eating).
- (5) Outdoor exercise is essential; but children should be kept from grouping at this time.

The above applies especially to infantile paralysis. It applies at all times with equal force to all the diseases of childhood such as scarlet fever, diphtheria, measles, whooping-cough and chicken-pox.
